OCTOBER 2026 NEWSLETTER

*Certainly, the faithful love of the Lord hasn't ended; certainly, God's compassion isn't through!
They are renewed every morning. Great is your faithfulness. Lamentations 3:22-23*

Dear Friends in Christ,

I hope that you are enjoying this crisp fall air and turning of seasons, yet another reminder of the creative power of our awesome God, who set the world spinning in a celestial dance with the sun and moon and planets. The leaves are changing color and some are even dropping already. It amazes me how quickly we went from the overwhelming heat of August to the mild days of September, and now we are on the cusp of October with temperatures that remind us winter is coming quickly.

As I think about this coming month, I can't help but think that last year, I basically missed October altogether. I had brain surgery on October 6 to remove the majority of my tumor, followed by several days in ICU and then almost 2 weeks of rehab. By the time I was on my way home, the trees were almost bare. As I am coming up on the anniversary of my diagnosis and surgery, recognizing that I have already beat the odds (statistically the average survival rate for glioblastoma is 6-9 months from diagnosis), I am rather pensive and wistful as I reminisce about the past year.

We have had many challenges and even more victories. Every day that I get to see the sun rise and set is a victory. I continue to cling to the scripture verses that we read on the Sunday I was diagnosed. God's mercies and compassion are renewed every morning! God is faithful and good. These are the verses that give me strength and hope, written on a plaque that sits where I can see it every day. But I don't always think about the rest of that passage:

My Lord definitely won't reject forever. Although he has caused grief, he will show compassion in measure with his covenant loyalty. He definitely doesn't enjoy affliction, making humans suffer. Lamentations 3:31-33

These verses are just as important as the ones I recite daily. They also remind me of why they were written originally: the book of Lamentations is giving voice to people crying out in despair, facing the worst imaginable horrors, besieged within the walls of Jerusalem, slowly dying, watching their children starve, crying out in agony until they are too weak to cry anymore. Imagining what this was like for the victims and the survivors forced into exile following that horrific event, living in strange and foreign lands where they don't speak the language or know the customs, I am reminded of the many atrocities' human beings have inflicted on one another over the course of history and still do even to this day. And I am reminded that my ailments and challenges are rather minimal compared to theirs. It doesn't mean that my (or your) aches and pains are unimportant, just that things could be much worse. Through it all, I know that God is with me and with each of us, renewing his mercy and compassion each morning. Great is God's faithfulness!

May God bless you and keep you, give you strength and courage to face whatever challenges come your way. May you always feel the presence of the Spirit beside you and within you. May you feel the prayers of your faith community holding you tightly, uplifting you so that God's face may shine upon you.

Grace and Peace, Pastor Julie

King's Conquest and Baked Potato Bar Summary

Thank you to everyone that helped in any way with the King's Conquest and/or Baked Potato Bar on Sunday, August 30, 2026. We had 98 people in attendance at the FREE concert, and we had 86 people that enjoyed our Baked Potato Bar. We planned for 100 people for the Baked Potato Bar, but I purchased 140 bakers, so Carla Marty and I made Baked Potato soup with the leftover bakers. We raised $800 from the Potato Bar and the soup from this meal event.

SAVE THE DATE "THANK YOU SUNDAY" OCTOBER 25th - 9:30 AM

On "Thank You Sunday" the stewardship committee honors an individual or committee for their outstanding work for the church. Following the service a complimentary brunch will be available.

On Sunday, November 1, 2026, we will be celebrating All Saints' Day, honoring the saints of the church, the ones who have gone before us leaving marks on our hearts and lives that will never be forgotten. If you or someone you know lost a loved one this past year and would like to have them honored during our service, please contact the church office at 715-743-2147 or neillsvilleuccoffice@gmail.com. Please provide the name of the person to be memorialized, dates of birth and death and a photograph (if available). The family of the deceased will be invited to come forward and light a candle when their loved one's name is read and given a moment to share a brief memory. If no one is able to attend the service, we will light a candle for you. For all who are missing a loved one, whether they passed in the last year or last decade or even longer ago, we offer our deepest condolences and prayers of healing and comfort.

Holiday Fair

Holiday Fair Fast Approaching

Just a reminder to everyone ... the money in the Holiday Fair account is not raised just by the Holiday Fair ladies; it belongs to EVERYONE in our church. We have so many people who have very generously donated items to make our crafts with from wood, windows, buckets, sleds, pine boughs; not to mention all that have donated money to buy supplies. Not to mention the individuals that donate baked goods, greeting cards, and all the items to our New to Your Treasures. We could NOT make the money we do each year at our Holiday Fair, without all these people, both men and women, so we can give back to our church in whatever way is needed.

If anyone is interested in working on crafts, we work on crafts as follows:

- Tuesdays – 10 AM to 2 PM
- Wednesdays – 5:30 – 9 PM

This year's Holiday Fair, which is Saturday, November 14, 2026 is fast approaching for our 62nd Holiday Fair from 9 AM to 1 PM; with lunch serving from 11 AM to 1 PM. The lunch will consist of chicken salad on a croissant, baked potato soup, and dessert, (Betty Opelt's recipes). Carry-outs will be available.

Holiday Fair Yard Signs Available

It's that time of year again to put up the Holiday Fair yard signs. If you know of a prime spot to post (not just Neillsville) one of these signs and/or you can post one in your yard, please pick them up from the craft room.

NOTE: It's easier to put these signs in the ground before it freezes, which hopefully is a long time from now.

Thank you for your support!

Friends, please be aware of our policy regarding children in church:

- If your kids are loud, please still come to church.
- If you're running late because getting everyone out the door was a battle, please still come to church.
- If your toddler won't sit still, please still come to church.
- If your baby needs to eat, please still come to church.
- If your child asks questions at the least convenient time, please still come to church.
- If someone cries, drops a toy, needs a snack, or has to make their third trip to the bathroom, please still come to church.
- If your child doesn't know all the words, all the prayers, or exactly when to sit and stand, please still come to church.
- If you feel like you spent the entire service managing your children and heard approximately 12% of the sermon, please still come to church.
- If Sunday morning feels messy instead of peaceful, please still come to church.
- If you're worried your children are distracting the people around you, please still come to church.

Children do not learn how to be part of the Church by staying home until they can sit quietly.

- They learn by being here.
- They learn the hymns by hearing us sing them.
- They learn the prayers by hearing us pray them.
- They learn to worship by watching us worship.
- They learn that church is home because we make room for them here.
- The wiggles, whispers, dropped crayons, crying babies, and little voices are not interruptions to the life of the Church; they are evidence that the Church is alive.

So bring the babies. Bring the toddlers. Bring the big kids. Come late. Sit in the back. Sit in the front. Step out when you need to and come back in.

Just come.

Reflection: The Useless Tree

There is an ancient Daoist story about a carpenter who came upon an enormous tree.

The tree was impressive. Its trunk was wide enough for several people to stand beneath it. Its branches stretched out in all directions, forming a canopy big enough to shelter many. It had grown for generations.

But the carpenter barely gave it a second glance. The trunk was twisted and rough. The branches bent in strange ways. The wood was knotted. You couldn't make a straight beam from it or turn it into fine furniture. Even a coffin maker would have turned it down. The carpenter declared the tree useless and continued on his way.

Later, the tree appeared to the carpenter in a dream and questioned his judgment. What was he comparing the tree to? Fruit trees and timber trees were seen as valuable because people could use them. Their branches were cut, their fruit picked, and their trunks eventually cut down. Their usefulness shortened their lives.

The old tree had survived simply because nobody could figure out what to do with it.

So it grew. And grew. And grew.

Many generations spent time under its branches. Travelers found shade there. Birds built nests in its canopy. Insects made homes in its bark. Its roots kept the soil in place. Its leaves took in sunlight and released oxygen.

Useless tree? Who gets to decide when something has value? We live in a culture that has declared that almost everything is measured by its usefulness. A forest is valued for its timber. A mountain is valuable if it has minerals. A river is valuable if it can water crops, make electricity, or carry goods. Land that doesn't make money is called "undeveloped." Maybe our understanding of usefulness has become terribly small.

We judge our days by what we get done and our organizations by what they produce. Somewhere along the way, usefulness became confused with worth.

The old tree shows us a different way to look at things. Its value isn't about what we can take from it. Its gift is simply being part of a network of life that no spreadsheet could ever measure.

I wonder what would happen if we extended that generosity toward ourselves. You do not have to justify your existence through productivity. You don't become more important by answering more emails, making more money, gaining more followers, joining another committee, or adding one more task to an already busy life. It might even be spiritually risky to spend our lives trying to be useful to systems we no longer trust.

Perhaps these times require us to become a little more useless.

We might become less useful to an economy that always wants us to buy more. Less useful to algorithms that make money by keeping us upset. Less useful to political groups that want us to fear each other. Less useful to jobs that see exhaustion as dedication. Less useful to cultures that think every quiet moment needs to be filled.

That does not mean withdrawing from the world. The useless tree was doing quite a lot. It was making shade. It was holding soil. It was sheltering birds. It was participating in the slow exchange of carbon, water, sunlight, fungi, insects, roots, and air that makes life possible.

Maybe you need that reminder today. You are allowed to sit beneath a tree without accomplishing anything. You are allowed to make something beautiful that nobody buys. You are allowed to spend an afternoon with someone you love and have nothing to show for it. You can pray without getting an answer, grow tomatoes poorly, sing out of tune, take a nap, watch birds, look at clouds, read poetry, or learn something that will never help your résumé.

You are allowed to be wonderfully inefficient at being human.

And maybe, paradoxically, that is when another kind of usefulness begins to emerge. Someday someone exhausted from trying to survive this strange age may come upon you. They may need somewhere to rest. Because you resisted every demand to turn yourself into lumber, you may still be standing there, gnarled by experience, crooked in interesting places, gloriously difficult to monetize, with branches wide enough to offer them shade.

A Prayer for The Grace to Be Enough

Holy Mystery, release us from the exhausting belief that we must earn our place in this world.

Forgive us for the ways we have measured life only by what can be extracted from it.

Help us recognize the sacred worth of forests and wetlands, elders and children, rest and play, silence and wonder, and every life that refuses to fit neatly into our calculations.

May we become less useful to everything that diminishes life and more available to everything that nourishes it.

And when someone weary finds their way beneath our branches, may there be room. Amen.
